BEST BET: Race 2 - #7 Quijote

Having lived for a bit in the shadow of his stablemate, Kroy, I think this could be the day for Quijote to shine. He should get a race flow conducive to his running style, as there looks to be plenty of pace signed on, Kroy included. Quijote is coming off a strong win over this course, and in fact is 2-for-2 at GPW. He should sit the perfect stalking trip.

LONGSHOT: Race 7 - #7 Wildwood's Beauty

Although he's only run one starter at Gulfstream Park West so far this meet, trainer Scott Becker is a trainer that is 24% on the year, running primarily in the Midwest. This two year old filly by versatile sire Kantharos has been working exceptionally well over the Gulfstream main track and could be one to watch, especially if the morning line favorite in this race doesn't fire.
